'Dump Johnson' Call Splits State Democrats

LANSING (AP)—An already deep rift in Michigan's Democratic party widened today in the wake of State Chairman Zolton Ferency's "dump Johnson" call.

The party's top elected state officials, Secretary of State James Hare and Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley, disassociated themselves from Ferency's call for organized action by party dissidents.

So did former Gov. G. Mennen "Soapy" Williams, architect of the Democrats' golden years in the state.

Five officers of the State Central Committee also insisted that Ferency did not speak for them or for most party members in the state.

And six of the eight Wayne County congressional district chairmen sent Ferency a telegram calling for him to "take the honorable course and resign your party chairmanship forthwith."

Ferency issued a statement

Tuesday saying President Johnson's decline in popularity polls and divisions spawned by the war in Vietnam threatened Democratic candidates with defeat in 1968.

Ferency urged dissatisfied Democrats to unite before the end of the year if they want "to be heard on either the national ticket or platform."

Ferency issued his surprise statement 12 hours after a meeting in Detroit of party leaders. He did not mention his intentions to do so at that time.

Williams, who was at the meeting, said, "What Ferency said is not a reflection of a party position and shouldn't have been giving any appearance of something from the State Central Committee."

Said Kelley, "He certainly wasn't speaking for me." Hare held off comment, saying he plans to make an issue of Ferency's remarks at a party leadership meeting Monday.

Hare disputed Ferency's charges that President Johnson was suppressing dissent.

The officers of the state central committee who spoke out against Ferency were Mrs. Patricia Knox and Kenneth N. Hylton, both vice chairmen; Stuart E. Hertzberg, treasurer; Olivia Maynard, secretary, and Nancy

A. Waters, corresponding secretary.

"We feel Ferency spoke out of deep personal conviction," they said, but added they did not feel he acted properly in his capacity as state chairman.

In a telegram to Ferency Wednesday, six of Wayne County's eight congressional district chairmen said they "are distressed at your unwarranted and ill-considered attacks on President Johnson."

The six urged Ferency to step down. "Your future public utterances will then be correctly labeled as personal sentiments and not party policy," they said.

The six are Robert E. Dwyer of the 2nd district, R. Patrick Donahue of the 14th, John L. Canfield of the 15th, Michael Berry of the 16th, William Gladstone of the 17th and Jerry Raymond of the 18th.

Dwyer was one of three who had earlier urged Ferency to step down. He has promised to do so.

The six also urged Ferency to resign from the State Central Committee.

They said they would support any candidate for state chairman who would not make such attacks on President Johnson.

LBJ Hopes Senate Eases Spending Bar

House Demands $7 Billion Cut To Ease Surplus

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rocked by a House vote to cut spending by an estimated $7 billion, President Johnson's supporters are pinning their budget hopes on a reportedly more sympathetic Senate.

The House voted 238 to 164 Wednesday night to write into an emergency financing bill two stringent federal spending limitations offered by a Republican and a Southern Democratic leader.

The Senate Appropriations Committee meets today on the bill. Budget Director Charles L. Schultze as main witness. Procedures were speeded because the present month-to-month financing for government departments whose 1967-68 appropriations are still pending runs out Monday.

The Administration Democrats predicted the Senate would either delete or greatly water down the spending restrictions and the matter would go to a conference of the two houses. Such a conference, however, could deadlock and hold up the financing measure beyond the Monday deadline.

Many members of Congress have said spending should be cut before taxes are increased. President Johnson has asked for a 10 per cent surcharge on personal and corporate income taxes, mostly to pay for increasing Vietnam war costs.

The President and Congress have been fighting back and forth about which should do the cutting. Johnson says he can't slide spending until Congress has finished appropriating and he knows what he has to work with.

Held To June Level One provision of the bill passed Wednesday requires that spending this year be held at the level of the budget year that ended June 30, Rep. Jamie L. Whitten, D-Miss., who proposed it, exempted activities connected with the Vietnam war; military pay; veterans' benefits; interest on the national debt; and the highway, Social Security, welfare and Medicare programs.

Additionally, the President would be authorized to make exceptions for the Post Office Department and Internal Revenue Service.

The other limitation was backed by Rep. Frank T. Bow of Ohio and practically all his Republican colleagues. It would set what Bow called an absolute ceiling of $131.5 billion on spending during the present fiscal year. Again, Vietnam spending was excepted.

Illinois Forbids Dumping Wastes In Lake Michigan

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP)—The Illinois legislature, meeting in special session, passed early today an antipollution bill which would ban the dumping of waste materials in Illinois waters of Lake Michigan.

The measure cleared the Republican-controlled legislature easily after leaders of both parties worked out a compromise. Gov. Otto Kerner vetoed a more limited antipollution bill passed in June, but Democratic leaders indicated he would sign the revised bill.

Under its terms, penalties of $1,000 to $10,000 and a jail sentence up to one year are provided for discharging any materials into Lake Michigan without a permit. The Illinois Sanitary Water Board would be the sole policing agency for the new system of pollution inspections and water testing.

Mariner 5 Flies By Venus Today

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—A U.S. spacecraft flies by Venus today on an information-gathering mission that, even if perfect, will but confirm findings of a Soviet craft that landed there Wednesday and reported it hot and hostile to life.

Mariner 5, smaller and less sophisticated than Russia's Venus 4, so far has done all asked of it.

Flight controllers at Jet Propulsion Laboratory radioed commands during the night that turned on power to operate instruments and a tape recorder.

Mariner 5 loops behind Venus shortly after 1:30 p.m. EDT today.

A laboratory spokesman said all systems on the craft were functioning properly.

Plans called for this sequence of events: Shortly after noon a sensor aboard was to "see" Venus 26,000 miles away and start a tape to record data from instruments measuring hydrogen, oxygen and radiation.

Measure Atmosphere About 1:30 p.m., traveling at 19,000 miles an hour, the craft was to swing behind the planet, closing to within 2,500 miles. It was to emerge on the other side after being hidden for 26 minutes.

Distortion of radio signals as they passed through the atmosphere on either side of the planet was to give scientists a measure of the density and altitude of the atmosphere.

Playback of the recorded tape was to start 14 hours after encounter. A spokesman said it would be a day or more before data could be analyzed and preliminary results announced.

"About the best we can do immediately is say whether the instruments were working during the fly-by," he said.

Mariner 5 was designed to measure the density and temperature of Venus' cloudy atmosphere, determine if the planet has a magnetic field and detect any radiation trapped in it.

Check On Venus 4 Answers to these questions were radioed Wednesday by a Soviet capsule parachuted to the planet's surface from the 2,400-pound Venus 4. U.S. scientists said the 500-pound Mariner 5's findings would be welcome as a check on the accuracy of the Soviet reports.

Mariner 5 was launched last July 13, Venus 4 two days earlier.

Governors Are Iked By LBJ's Bid For Backing

BARBADOS, S.S. INDEPENDENCE (AP)—A White House message, which went astray, stiffened Republican resistance today to any endorsement from the national governors' conference of President Johnson's Vietnam war policy.

The 21 GOP governors on the conferece already had decided Wednesday to block any Vietnam resolution. Since a three-fourths vote is needed to bring a resolution before the conference, they made the power to do so.

Then Gov. Ronald Reagan of California, stumbling onto a cable from presidential assistant W. Mark Watso to former Gov. Price Daniel of Texas, now the administration's liaison man with the governors.

The cable told Daniel to question Gov. James A. Rhodes of Ohio and John J. Chafee of Rhode Island—both Republicans—about their views on the President's war policy.

One White House source said Watson's cablegram was no more than an effort to arm Daniel with talking points and background for shipboard debate on a Vietnam resolution.

Query Rhodes Watson instructed Daniel to ask Rhodes whether he was "running out on his former position" supporting the administration's Vietnam policies. The cable said Chafee should be pinned down on his contention that after previous Vietnam endorsements by the governors' conference, Johnson had "waved around such documents for political purposes."

Chafee told newsmen the message demonstrated that the Democratic resolution was "produced at the direction of the White House as we Republicans thought all of the time."

Rhodes said if the resolution is brought up he will vote for it, but that he has not decided yet if he will vote to bring it up.

Reagan said he read Watson's cablegram accidentally while leafing through his own messages.

Political Motive He alluded to in the Republican caucus and Gov. George Romney of Michigan said he urged Reagan to make it public.

"It's quite a different thing when they ask for a resolution before an election year," Romney said. "The timing and the injection of this message indicate its political motive. It's the type of news management I have been referring to."

Romney said the cable, which

U Of Wisconsin Expels 13 In Antiwar Melee

MADISON, Wis. (AP)—Wisconsin's acting governor announced today the State Legislature today that 13 student leaders of an antiwar protest at the University of Wisconsin Wednesday have been expelled or suspended.

Chancellor William H. Sewell announced immediately after 100 Gov. Jack Olson made the announcement to legislators, some 1,500 demonstrators gathered on the campus to cheer for a boycott.

William Unger, 25, a teaching assistant from Mount Morris, Ill., termed the suspensions "selective discrimination."

The crowd then broke up into small groups and began picketing various buildings in the central campus area, carrying signs urging students and faculty to stay away from classes.

University officials called in riot-trained police Wednesday to break up the sit-in at the Commerce Building, and a wild melee erupted.

But demonstrators won one point.

Chancellor William H. Sewell announced Wednesday night he would suspend at least temporarily further student interviews by Dow Chemical Co., manufacturer of napalm for the war in Vietnam.

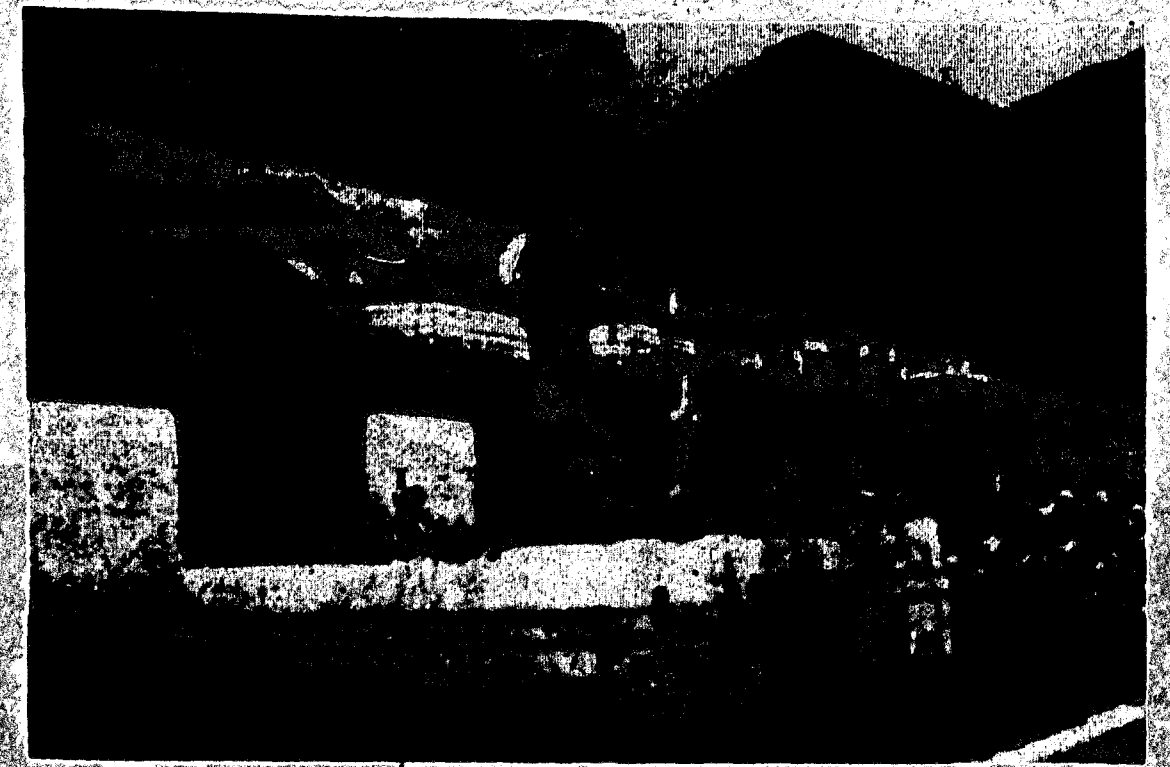

The State Assembly, angered by news of the uprising, endorsed a resolution asking expulsion of students arrested in the sit-in. The lawmakers approved the measure 94-5.

Hundreds of students blocked corridors of the Commerce building for nearly three hours before police made their move.

Jury Gets Fate Of 18 Klansmen

MERIDIAN, Miss. (AP)—The government charged that 18 men conspired in a Ku Klux Klan plot to execute three young civil rights workers in 1964 was in the hands of a federal jury today.

After six hours of deliberation, the all-white jury of seven women and five men was locked up in a hotel Wednesday night to resume their deliberations at 8:30 a.m.

U.S. Dist. Judge Harold Cox

ordered the jury to bed after a marshal brought him a note from the jury room. First he conferred with the prosecution and the 12 defense lawyers.

No State Charges Under a Reconstruction era law, the men were charged with conspiring to violate the civil rights of the three men who were slain. Maximum punishment: 10 years and $5,000 fine. No state charges were filed.

In final arguments, Asse. U.S.

Atty. Gen. John Doar, head of the Justice Department's civil rights division, recommended that one defendant, Travis M. Barnett, 39, be acquitted.

But Doar added, a acquittal of the others "would be saying there was no night time release by (Deputy) Cecil Price, there are no White Knights, there are no young men dead, there was no murder."

The government contends that the three civil rights workers were arrested at Philadelphia, Miss., June 21, 1964, by Neshoba County Deputy Sheriff Cecil Price, held in jail until night, then delivered to a band of waiting White Knights of the Ku Klux Klan.

Charge Intimidation Defense lawyers pictured the case as an effort to use "central power to intimidate Mississippi" and described Doar as "the man who put James Meredith in Ole Miss." Meredith is the Negro student, now living in New York City, who desegregated the University of Mississippi in 1962 after a long court fight.

Three FBI informers who were the principal government witnesses were repeatedly criticized in defense arguments.

The civil rights workers were Michael Schwerner, 24, a Brooklyn social worker who was in Meridian for the Congress of Racial Equality (CORE); Andrew Goodman, 20, a New York college student who had just arrived for a summer of civil rights work; and James Chaney, 22, a Meridian Negro who assisted Schwerner.

Their bodies were buried deep in a new clay dam on a farm near Philadelphia. Defense efforts to find out who told the FBI the exact location of the bodies were never answered.

Three of the ministers, the Rev. J.W. Hayes, John Thomas Porter and T.L. Fisher, live in Birmingham but were unavailable for comment.

Others included in the contempt charge are the Revs. Wyatt Tee Walker, now in New York, A.D. King, now in Louisville, Ky., and F.L. Shuttlesworth, now in Cincinnati, Ohio. The Kings are brothers.

When arrested the eight will be required to serve a five-day jail sentence and pay a $50 fine. Barber said any of the parties failing to pay the fine will be held an additional 20 days in jail.

Judge Calls For Dr. King Arrest

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP)—Contempt charges filed in 1963 against Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. and seven other ministers are a step closer to enforcement with the call for issuance of arrest orders by a circuit judge.

Judge William Barber said Wednesday he received directives regarding the case from the Alabama and U.S. Supreme courts before upholding the original contempt citation issued April 23, 1963.

King and the others are accused of participating in parades and demonstrations in defiance of a court order prohibiting them. The charges were filed after King released statements at a news conference critical of the court and its proceedings.

Barber said arrest orders would be delivered to sheriffs in

UPCAP Presses For Vocational Schools

The Steering Committee of the UPCAP Human Resources Council meeting at Marquette on Tuesday selected promotion of vocational and community schools as a project for a concentrated effort by the Council over the next year.

Charles Follo, chairman of the council, indicated that this project area was chosen after a review of a number of different possibilities including aging, law enforcement and probation, cultural activities, and problems of the handicapped.

Edwin Wuehle, superintendent of schools in Marquette, is chairman of the committee which will draw up a program of action for the council to follow. Once drawn up, the program will culminate in a regional conference to be held in the spring of 1968.

Regional Conference

Vocational education and community schools were selected because the "need" is so acute, and in both cases the impact on the community could be quite great. Vocational education can include education and training for adults and the development of community colleges as well as high school programs.

A community school, it was agreed, is a mechanism to draw a community together and to mobilize a broad spectrum of community resources to fill needs that are felt in many areas such as aging, recreation, and community cultural activities.

"Over the past two years, the Human Resources Council has followed a general plan of action which we have found to be effective," Charles Follo said. "Though the interests of the council are broad, and we have a number of communities which are active in a number of different ways, we have had best results by selecting a target problem area and concentrating the major part of the council's efforts in this one area. Each year we have called a regional conference to highlight and dramatize needs and possible solutions in the target area."

Gains Cited

"Two years ago," said Follo, "the council concentrated on the problems of general education in the U. P. and Vice-President Hubert Humphrey attended the conference. We called to publicize these problems. One of the outcomes traceable to that conference was the establishment of an Educational Services Center at Northern Michigan University in Marquette. Representatives of the Human Resources Council and UPCAP staff met with school administrators and representatives of Northern Michigan University and the State Department of Education to plan a program to provide local U. P. school districts with the services of a battery of educational consultants who would work with local school staffs to plan the improvement of school programs.

"The program is now being financed by the U. S. Department of Education. The Eastern U. P. Intermediate School District is the grantee for the program, which is being carried out at Northern Michigan University. The program is now almost fully staffed, and is getting underway."

Health Interest

"This past year we concentrated on health problems in the U. P. and we feel the effects of the Spring Health Conference held at Marquette are beginning to be felt. A number of different health planning groups have gotten together in a single regional organization which we hope can coordinate the efforts of all concerned."

"We have every reason to believe," Follo continued, "that our policy of concentrating efforts will be as successful in 1967-68 as it has been in the past. I have been told by competent school administrators that vocational education has been stagnant in most areas of the U. P. though it has been growing at a rapid rate elsewhere in the state. There are some outstanding exceptions, of course."

Need New Concept

Edwin Wuehle, chairman of the Council Committee on the problem, said, "We are probably not going to make much progress in the area of vocational education in the U. P. until we are ready to accept a broad new concept of area vocational training centers. The resources of most school districts are too small for any great expansion of existing secondary school programs in individual districts. We can break the deadlock that exists by establishing imaginative programs that cut across individual school districts and which include both young people and adults."

Lee Meyers, executive director of UPCAP, assuring the council of the assistance of UPCAP staff, said, "I am convinced that if communities can approach the problems of vocational education and community schools on a broad basis, they will find that they have developed a type of community concern and cooperation that will carry over into other aspects of education and community life. As a result, the outlook of the entire community can be changed."

Agencies Involved

In addition to selecting the project area for the coming year, the steering committee also heard a report on the progress of the Educational Services Center at Northern Michigan University. Dr. Gordon Edie, chairman of the Community Health Resources Committee of the Council reported on the follow-up work resulting from the Spring Health Conference.

Present at the meeting were: Charles Follo, University of Michigan Extension Service, Escanaba; Jim Gooch, Michigan State University Extension Service, Marquette; Lee Meyers, UPCAP, Escanaba; Edwin Wuehle, Marquette School District; Dr. Gordon Edie, Michigan State University Extension Service, Marquette; Dr. Robert Libby, Marquette Catholic Diocese, Marquette; Douglas D. Rapley, Michigan Tech, Houghton; Mrs. Gordon Edie, League of Women Voters, Newberry; and Ray Gunnerson, Michigan State University Extension Service, Marquette.

THE SERVANT GIRL, whose "crying out of witches" sends old Salem to its Puritan depths, pleads with the young farmer whose wife she accuses. They are Dick Hanson in the role of Proctor and Olive Godmer as Abigail, the servant girl. (Daily Press Photo)

Players Offer Miller Drama, The Crucible

"The Crucible," a story of love, hate and witches in old Salem, will be presented by the Players de Noe in the Escanaba Area High School auditorium Monday and Tuesday, Oct. 23 and 24, at 8 p.m.

The drama of Puritan conflict with the forces of the devil and the purge of witchcraft among the people of an early Massachusetts town makes for exciting theater.

The story focuses upon a young farmer, his wife, and a young servant girl who maliciously accuses the wife's arrest for witchcraft. The farmer brings the girl to court to admit the lie — and instead of saving his wife, finds himself also accused, imprisoned and condemned.

Arthur Miller's award-winning drama is based upon historical fact, Miller says of this play.

Jack Romstad is directing the play, and Dick Hanson is playing the lead role of John Proctor. Opposite him will be Olive Godmer as the tempestuous Abigail Williams who in order to save herself from punishment and destroy Proctor's wife begins the "crying out" of witches. Arlene Hendrickson will play John Proctor's wife, Elizabeth. The great love conflict between these three strong wills creates a drama that eventually involves an entire town and starts a legend that is part of the heritage of America.

Bob Schrader will play the Reverend Hale and Pete Adamini is cast as Deputy Governor Danforth. Bill Williams will play Parris, uncle to Abigail, whose stupidity and smallness brings vengeance down upon the town.

Ralph Waldo Emerson was called the "Sage of Concord."

Ruppe Hopes For Solution Of Net Problem

WASHINGTON — Congressman Philip Ruppe said today that he is encouraged at the prospects for an equitable solution to the controversy surrounding the proposed ban on gill net fishing in the Great Lakes.

"There are about 97,400 square miles of water in the Great Lakes. Surely, there must be enough room for both the sports fishermen and the commercial interests. What is needed is legislation to allow the Michigan Department of Conservation to designate separate areas for commercial fishing and sports fishing. At this point, under Michigan law, the Department of Conservation does not have authority to manage the commercial fishery on an area basis."

"Fishing in the Great Lakes is on the way up," Ruppe said. "We are embarking on a building program which will create a tremendous fishing industry, and the commercial fishermen will be needed to play a valuable part in the management of the Great Lakes fish program. Commercial fishermen will aid in the maintenance of the balance of the species by harvesting the rough fish and the stock of fish unavailable to sports fishermen."

"I am convinced that the State Department of Conservation is interested in arriving at a just solution which will allow both sports fishing and commercial fishing in our Great Lakes waters. However, they must be given the legislative tools to manage such a program," Ruppe added.

Season Tickets

Tickets for a season of entertainment in Escanaba, including one drama, a musical, and two other offerings, are still available for a price of $5. For high school students and younger the price is $4.

Season tickets will give admission to the "The Crucible," to reserved seats for "My Fair Lady," and seats for two other plays. Without the season tickets, the price of "My Fair Lady" would be $2.50 alone.

Tickets are on sale at Anderson-Bloom's, Gust Asp's, West End Drugs, by calling 786-2695, or they may be purchased from any member of the Players.

Marker Located In Michigan-Ohio Border Dispute

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP)—A long lost boundary marker was entered Wednesday as the latest exhibit in the 132-year-old border dispute between Ohio and Michigan.

Ralph Berry, aerial photography director for the Ohio Highway Department, said Toledo youngsters working for a "two-bit" state reward found the marker two weeks ago as both states were preparing an extensive joint search.

The marker turned up on Toledo's Lost Peninsula, where Berry said he expected to find it.

There was little testimony from either side, as the two states renewed their claims in court.

Michigan has filed suit in the U.S. Supreme Court, seeking a change in the international boundary established by Congress in 1836. Dispute over the state borders led to the bloodless "Toledo War" in 1835.

The suit involves ownership rights to natural gas and other minerals which are already being brought to the surface on the Canadian side of the lake.

Michigan Atty. Gen. Frank J. Kelly said that the suit was filed at the recommendation of Ohio Gov. James A. Rhodes. Rhodes, Kelly said, rejected a Michigan proposal for a joint commission to resolve the controversy.

Former Federal Circuit Court Judge Albert Branson Maris of Philadelphia assigned by the Supreme Court to handle hearings on the dispute, was informed, shortly before Wednesday's session opened that his wife had died. He consented to remain for opening statements and a boat tour of the disputed area.

Maris said there seemed no pressure for immediate settlement and said the first full dress hearings would be in March or April.

Maris reminded both sides that a seven-state Lake Michigan water diversion case which he also supervised as special master produced 30,000 pages of testimony in seven years of hearings.

Jacobetti For U. P. Freeway

Rep. D. J. Jacobetti (D-Ne-gaunee) announces his support of Senate Bill 14, part of Governor Romney's Good Roads package, as it was amended in the Senate. The amendment introduced by Senator Joseph Mack (D-Ironwood) would commit the Highway Department to match federal funds for an interstate east-west highway through the Upper Peninsula.

"For the first time, it appears that the Upper Peninsula will get its share of road building," Jacobetti said. "This proposed 300-mile road building program promises to open up the U. P. to new industry, more tourism, more jobs and a sound economy for the people of the Upper Peninsula."

Meat Inspection By State Periled

Michigan's statewide meat inspection program is in grave danger of being washed down the drain through a nationwide wave of public indignation, much of it generated by critic Ralph Nader's attacks upon the meat industry, said Chairman Charles Donaldson at the Michigan Commission of Agriculture meeting Oct. 12. Donaldson is a Menominee County dairy farmer.

The Michigan meat inspection program, born two years ago with legislation that set it up as a model among the states, has made great strides towards protection of the public meat supply, Donaldson said. All state slaughtering establishments are licensed and the law requires inspection of each animal before and after killing.

Donaldson said that Michigan taxpayers and the Michigan livestock and meat processing industry would all stand to lose if a totally federal meat inspection program were to usurp state's rights.

More U. S. Taxes
He urged statewide support of the meat inspection program now administered by the Michigan Department of Agriculture and said that short-changing such programs as state meat inspection can only lead to bigger federal tax bites and loss of state control on intrastate programs. "Meat inspection is only one example," the agriculture chairman said. "Lack of positive action in Michigan will lead to federal intervention in many other areas, such as air and water pollution."

Agricultural commission members said the state meat inspection program, in operation since January, 1966, presently has the tools to accomplish 100 per cent of the job in Michigan without federal intervention in intrastate meat commerce, with the exception of adequate financing. The commission stated that the program has never been fully financed and as a result 40 state slaughtering establishments cannot be supplied with state inspection, although this is required by law.

State Laws Good
This constitutes an open invitation to critics like Nader, and the national agitation for expansion of the federal meat program into all Michigan plants, the commission said.

Effectiveness of the Michigan Department of Agriculture's food protection programs was demonstrated in the recent convictions of 16 individuals and meat firms connected with an illegal meat ring in the Rockford-Grand Rapids-Holland area. "Our state laws have teeth in them and are rigidly enforced," Donaldson said.

"Presently only slaughtering plants killing animals for interstate commerce require federal inspection," noted commission member Blaque Knirk of Quincy. "There are only four of these in the state."

Developing Quality
Knirk, a beef farmer, said the Michigan livestock industry should be extremely concerned with threats against an effective state meat inspection program. "We've been developing quality sources of Michigan-grown red meat and, only through a strong state inspection program can Michigan industry be protected against competition of 'junk' animals shipped in from other states," Knirk said.

"He explained that it was well-known throughout the country that before Michigan had state-controlled meat inspection, diseased and poor quality cattle were shipped into the state for slaughtering at unlicensed plants. He said that the Michigan livestock and meat industry had given strong support to establishing the state meat inspection program. In testifying to the effectiveness of the state program, commission members noted that the Michigan Department of Agriculture meat inspectors have condemned 1½ million pounds of unwholesome meat in the last 12 months.

"This is meat that could easily have ended up on any housewife's dinner table prior to inception of our program," said the commission's secretary, Mrs. Rebecca Tompkins of Traverse City. In addition to the millions of pounds condemned, she added, traffic in questionable animals was deterred. "There's no knowing how much more might have been sold for slaughter if our inspectors hadn't been on the job."

Need A Million
Department Director E. Dale Ball said that the decision to leave 40 slaughtering plants without state inspection was strictly economic. "We were not provided with adequate funds. Present meat inspection covers approximately 95 per cent of the volume of meat slaughtered in the state. But 40 of the smaller cannot yet be covered by inspectors. The choice was made on cost alone. The 40 plants not covered have a very low volume of business, making inspection coverage very costly per pound." He added that a federal meat inspection bill, the Smith-Foley Bill (H.R. 12145), now being considered would not provide inspection on small slaughtering plants.

Cost of an adequately financed state program is figured to be about $1,337,000 a year. This is about 15 cents per Michigan citizen per year. Presently, the Michigan Department of Agriculture must operate the program with about $300,000 less than needed. This leaves unprotected meat channels that could endanger food supply and jeopardizes the future of the program, the commission pointed out.

Leader Among States
Commission Chairman Donaldson said that "only a handful" of states have model meat law legislation such as Michigan's. "Few have the fine tools that we have to get the job done and this is one source of the national criticism," Donaldson said. "With adequate financing, our program could be a proud model of a state's ability to police its own affairs."

The commission of agriculture went on record at its meeting as being in support of the Purcell Bill (H.R. 12144), a cooperative state-federal approach to meat inspection. This involves about 250 slaughtering firms in Michigan, according to Michigan Department of Agriculture license records.

The Commission of Agriculture authorized Ball and his staff to take necessary action to alert state interests to the dangers of an inadequately financed meat inspection program and the possible federal usurpation of state powers. The commission urged that this message be carried to legislators at state and federal level, as well as Michigan meat consumers, the livestock industry and others concerned.

Nader And Meat

Ralph Nader, who scared the dickens out of the automobile industry with his book, "Unsafe At Any Price," attacking the safety engineering in American automobiles, is now stirring up trouble in the meat industry.

The solution to the shortcomings of the industry, he suggests, is to get the Federal Government into the act in a bigger way and set up a bigger bureaucracy and more rigid inspection of meats, etc.

At this point the able and trustworthy leaders of the Michigan Department of Agriculture ask to be heard and they tell us not to give up a very good thing for the hope of something better.

Charles Donaldson, Stephenson dairy farmer and a leader in Michigan agriculture, knows the livestock business intimately. He makes his living in dairying and he has been very active for many years in public causes in the Upper Peninsula. He says there's danger of Michigan's statewide meat inspection programs being washed down the drain by a nationwide wave of public indignation against meat industry abuses incited by Nader.

Michigan's meat inspection program, set up two years ago by legislation that was a model among the states, has made great strides in protection of the public meat supply, says Donaldson, and shouldn't be junked in any hysteria for federal control. All Michigan slaughterhouses are licensed, and the law requires an inspection of every animal before and after killing.

Michigan taxpayers and Michigan livestock and meat processing businesses all stand to lose if a totally federal meat inspection program usurps the state's rights in this field, says Donaldson. What's needed, he says, is for Michigan's meat inspection program to be fully financed, which it has never been. As a result 40 state slaughtering plants can't be supplied with state inspection, although it's required by law.

The cost of an adequately financed state program is estimated at about $1.3 million a year and this is $300,000 more than the Michigan Department of Agriculture receives for this work. Even so it has condemned 1.3 million pounds of meat as unwholesome in the past year.

It will be much more costly to replace the state meat control program with a federal program and there's no assurance that the federal program would be better. It would set up another very expensive federal service, and add to our federal taxes for a function that can and should be administered by our state government, guided by a commission of men and women who know the business and who make their living at it.

We talk about resisting federalization of our state and local government services as needless, erosive and costly. Here's an example where $300,000 spent in full implementation of a needed sanitation service will prevent a bigger bill from Washington and further weakening of our state government.

Errors Eat Away At Romney Image

By BRUCE BLOSSAT
LANSING, Mich.—(NEA)—The real gravity of Michigan Gov. George Romney's problems in his quest for the 1968 Republican presidential nomination becomes clear only from a visit to his Michigan base.

Already well-known are his difficulties with the Vietnam issue, compounded by his celebrated "brainwash" statement of early September.

What emerges here is serious doubt whether he and his campaign staff have the means of offsetting these difficulties or of preventing new ones in the critical months ahead.

In-fighting, a jockeying for position close to the governor's ear, afflicts the staff at Romney Associates, his headquarters organization in this capital. Word of this comes not from ax-grinding contenders but from persons who deal closely with them on a daily basis.

These people outside the staff say that the controversy seems to swirl around the heads of two key aides, William Siedman, a wealthy businessman nominally in charge of administrative operations, and Richard Van Dusen, an old Romney hand officially in charge of scheduling.

The alleged emergence of these two into broader authority in strategy and policy-making has the effect, it is said, of "putting down" others (not least the veteran aide, Walter DeVries) and of confusing the lines which run to the governor himself.

Though this internal struggle may be publicly minimized, the evident fact is that it is real and it is dispiriting.

It could hardly come at a worse time. Whatever points Romney may have made in his three-week tour of the troubled cities, his political friends in Michigan and beyond agree that he needs an almost error-free performance from now until presidential-primary time in New Hampshire and Wisconsin.

While many of the governor's important Michigan supporters assert even privately that his heralded ability to bounce back from difficulty will save him on the national scene as it has at the state and corporate level, a few of the tougher ones are not so sure.

They believe that the governor stands at the ragged edge of the precipice. Since the "brainwash" business, they find that some top Republicans around the nation are wondering whether Romney may not have a Goldwaterish flair for statements that need constantly to be explained or excused. One eastern party figure says sadly: "They're laughing at him a little."

A Michigan politician fears that mistakes may so erode Romney's image that he will lose him at the national level—where it is much harder to bounce back.

Moreover, it is apparent that some of these harder judges, seeking the causes of trouble, look past the brainwash bloopers, the staff in-fighting and such matters to the background the governor brings to this presidential bid.

They contend that Romney's immense self-confidence, rooted in an unbroken string of successes in business and in Michigan politics, severely limits his willingness to take needed advice on national issues and political strategy.

He listens to his advisers for awhile, but then says in effect: "O.K., you've made your points. Now I've got some ideas of my own I'm going to use." He beats them down with the thesis that you cannot argue with success.

A small example of his resistance: His generally hailed April 7 Vietnam speech at Hartford, Conn., was poorly delivered. Staff people wanted him to view a full film of his performance. Though they scheduled three different showings, he found reasons to duck the viewing each time.

In consequence of all this, some of George Romney's fondest backers are questioning today whether he can judge men and use them well, can stay out of new trouble on issues, can put a real delegate-rustling operation together, and can attract the needed heavy funds that could be frightened off by failures on these other fronts. Their doubts are crucial for the governor.

Low Returns End Dairy Farming

By RICHARD LEHNERT

In Michigan Farmer

When the 1960 census was taken, William Heppner owned the largest farming operation in Bay County, Michigan. He milked about 300 cows and farmed 1,240 tillable acres of land.

But as of August of this year, Bill Heppner was no longer a farmer. What caused him to quit?

"With 300 cows and some of the best land in his area," it would seem that he could have made money in the dairy business. He admits he did. But, he said, relative to other "business" alternatives, he could not afford to be a dairyman under his circumstances and in his location.

If Heppner had been a "hard-headed dairyman," he could still have been dairying. But instead, he was a "hard-headed businessman."

"To be a businessman, you have to figure your investment and your return on investment," he said. "The value of my land had risen to about $700 an acre, which if invested at 6 per cent interest means the land owes me $42 an acre before I do anything with it."

Heppner is almost a classic example of what a recent survey by MSU ag economists showed about other dairymen who quit the business. These men listed high investments and low returns as the primary reason for quitting. Lack of labor was another reason often cited. And perhaps still more significant is the change in values the surveys found taking place among farmers.

Let's compare what might be called "typical business values" with those of Heppner.

In the urban business world, a man might start his business when he is young. After working hard for several years, he might accumulate employees, becoming more of a manager and less a laborer.

As a manager, he could enjoy vacations, occasional long weekends, five-day weeks—and his employees would follow his instructions while he was away. By age 45, he could retire from active business with a padded bank account while a younger man took over the business helm.

Heppner wanted essentially that. In fact, while in his forties, he decided that if he could not enjoy vacations, weekends off, etc., he'd get out of the business when he became 50 years of age.

His values, essentially, are the reasons why he quit. Living in the highly industrialized area of Bay City-Midland-Saginaw, he saw young men making $7 per hour or more on some urban jobs, with no investment. His son is one of them.

After making his 6 per cent return on fixed investment—he made it. At all—Heppner found his labor income was virtually nonexistent.

When Heppner reached age 50, the dairy situation looked worse to him than it had a few years earlier. Labor, of the kind that could be depended on became harder—not easier—to find.

Instead of becoming more of a full-time manager, Heppner found himself having to take over more and more of the manual labor.

With his labor force being cut from beneath him, Heppner cut his herd size. When he sold out completely, only 120 cows bedded down in his 240-free-stall barn and walked twice daily through his double-10 herringbone milking parlor.

His two sons, logical successors to such a business, had no interest. The eldest makes more than $7 per hour as a construction laborer working with steel buildings. The other is interested in building up a different business.

Keeps Some Land

"I can't get good men," Heppner said. "The boys have no interest, so I'm getting out. I don't blame the boys. I don't see any future for the young fellow in dairying under present conditions. In fact, the whole agricultural situation doesn't look too good here."

Heppner doesn't plan to sell all his farm land. He has reduced his acreage to 760 by selling choicer lots for industrial and other commercial interests. After a freeway went through his property, he found he owned four corners of a cloverleaf. Two oil companies paid $110,000 for two of the corners.

Heppner plans, on the other two corners, to build a restaurant and bar and a cheese store. One of his sons will join him in this business venture.

Heppner, in fact, feels that about the only way he made the money an operation the size of his should make was by appreciation of the land on which it was built. He still feels land is his best investment and did not sell all of it.

He's renting out more than 400 acres this year for farm land, but rent charges are figured at 6 per cent of the value of the land.

Heppner realized that changing from dairying to cash cropping, especially since his soil is suited to sugar beets, might make his land return what he needed to make investment costs and a good labor income. But, at age 50 he felt it was too late to start over building up an entirely new enterprise with different machinery.

Strike Hurts C&H Income

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP)—Calumet & Hecla, Inc., with holdings in Michigan's Upper Peninsula, has reported a 22 per cent drop in consolidated net income and a 12 per cent dip in sales for the first nine months of year.

The company said that although earnings of its Wolverine Tube Division increased substantially over last year, mine development at the Calumet Division suffered from a two week strike.

Also contributing to the decline, the company said, were a drop in sales of the Flexonics division and failure of the Canadian market for copper tubing to recover from an earlier weakness.

Sales for the period were $106,735,621 with earnings of $1.92 which compared with sales of $123,566,532 and earnings of $2.45 a share for the first nine months of last year.

The company said Cecil Suter, a mine manager and mining engineer, has been named general manager of the Calumet Division, succeeding B. C. Peterson who will assume new, unnamed duties in December.

Ann Seeking Cure For 'I Specialists'

Dear Ann: We have a relative who monopolizes every conversation with "Me, me, me — mine, mine. I bought. I spent. I own. I went. I did. In other words — capital "I" and small "u".

Can't these people hear themselves? Don't they realize it is ungracious to talk incessantly about one's self? Why do they do it? Perhaps if I understood it better I could tolerate it. — ASSAULTED EARDRUMS

Dear Assaulted: These pathetic creatures feel inadequate. The "I specialists" who continually brag about their possessions, their achievements and their expenditures are not only cloddish but boring. If you hear of a cure, let me know. I run into these people, too.

Dear Ann Landers: My sister had an illegitimate baby in another state and has been there for three years. When she left town she told every one she was going to marry a widower whose wife had died in childbirth. Please don't get the idea she is a stupid youngster. She is a professional person in her early 30's who has always held excellent positions.

Recently Sis called to say she has decided to come home. She wants us to get the word around that her husband was killed in a plane crash and she is returning home because she needs a change of scenery so she can recover from her grief.

My husband is furious. He is certain that few people believe her first story and that no one will believe the second one. We both feel as unfair of her to ask us to be for her. Please tell me what to do. — MR. AND MRS. B-BALL

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Inform: Your sister that you are not going to tell people anything, that the explanation can wait until she comes home and then she can put out any story she wishes.

If friends or relatives ask about her simply say you are unclear as to the details but when she comes home they can ask her.

Dear Ann Landers: We have a 13-year-old girl whom I can't recognize half the time because she is wearing someone else's clothes. Loretta has dozens of girl friends and they are forever switching outfits. I spend a lot of money on that young lady's wardrobe and I have yet to see her in any of her own beautiful skirts, blouses, slacks, sweaters, shifts or coats.

Last night I asked Loretta to dress for a special occasion and she said she had nothing to wear. She was right. Her best outfits had been traded. When I criticized the practice she called me dumb and insisted that all the kids trade clothes and I am not tuned in to what's happening. What do you know about this?

— DUMB MOTHER

Dear Mother: It's no fun. Girls have been trading clothes since the fig leaf.

Put your foot down on that young lady's smart mouth and tell her there will be no more trading of new clothes. If she wants to trade some oldies, O.K. — but make it clear, she must ask you, first.

U. P. Briefs:

Kingsford Latest School In Debt

The Breitung Township Kingsford Board of Education has joined the growing list of Upper Peninsula school boards to announce deficit financing for 1967-68 operations.

Despite an austerity program, the Kingsford school district will show a deficit of $129,433 at the close of school next spring, the board said. A public hearing on the problems will be held Oct. 26.

Escanaba, Menominee and Marquette school districts also are operating with deficits because of deferrals of millage proposals.

St. Ignace, however, which discontinued bus transportation, art and French programs at the start of the year because of lack of money, is expected to consider reinstating the programs because of the passage of a three mill tax for one year.

Voters approved the request 283 to 243 in the third election within months. The millage will produce about $27,000 from next year's tax bills, more than enough to cover an estimated $7,206 deficit this year.

Although Wawonowin Golf Club closed its fairways for the last time this year, the golf course won't be completely forgotten. Sod from the fairways of the course will be lifted and replaced at the Ishpeming Playgrounds to provide new turf for the football field. The Hematites meet Stambaugh at Stambaugh in the final football game of the season so the field project will not interfere with this fall's schedule.

Menominee's newest department store, the Tempo Store owned by Gamble Skogmo, Inc., opened its doors Wednesday in the new M&M Plaza. It is the first of a number of new stores to open in the first plaza of the shopping center.

Sault Ste. Marie voters will be asked Dec. 13 to approve a new high school bond issue. Total amount of the bond issue, has not yet been determined. Voters in the past have rejected proposals to build a new high school, but a questionnaire issued recently by the Board of Education has returned 1,401 residents in favor of a new high school and only 418 against.

Lakes' Check System In Use

The Coast Guard's new system of keeping track of ships crossing open waters on the Great Lakes is being used at the Escanaba Light Station. Purpose of the system, called LAVERS (Lake Vessel Reporting System), is to cut down the time a ship might be in distress without anyone knowing it.

"This is just like a flight plan an airplane makes," said an Escanaba Coast Guardman.

An ore carrier leaving Escanaba, for example, would file a route plan with the Coast Guard. Included in the information provided the Coast Guard would be the name of vessel, port of departure, date and time of departure, normal route to be traveled, next check point with estimated time of arrival, destination port and estimated time of arrival, number of men aboard and the fact whether or not a doctor is aboard.

If a vessel is four hours overdue in reporting by radio to the next check point in the system after leaving Escanaba, the LAVERS center in Cleveland (the Coast Guard's 9th District headquarters) will begin an immediate communications search for it. If the vessel is still unreported one hour later, the Coast Guard will start searching its intended route with ships and aircraft. Although the system is voluntary, the Coast Guard urges all ships of over 100 gross tons to participate.

Senior Citizens Housing Project Is Described

A 300 x 400-foot lot across U. S. 2 from the State Police Post will be the site for the Senior Citizens low rental housing unit, scheduled for occupancy next fall. Robert Noe, city manager told members of the Senior Citizens group at a recent meeting. Plans are in the drawing stage and costs and specifications are tentative.

The U-shaped 200-foot square building will contain 34 single bedroom apartments, two 2-bedroom apartments, a community sitting room, laundry and utility rooms. Ground breaking is scheduled next spring.

Emphasizing that figures were subject to change, Noe said the single retirees with maximum income of $3,000 and couples with maximum income of $3,600 would be financially eligible to rent apartments. Rental fees will probably be a maximum of $53 per month for a single person and $63 per month for a couple.

The project is financed through an interest-free government loan of $481,000 to be paid back from rental fees.

A panel of teachers described techniques they thought might arouse interest and excite young people to learn more about the men and events of American history.

The Historical Society offered the cooperation of its Delta County Historical Museum materials and personnel in furthering knowledge of local history in cooperation with the schools.

Nuclear Fallout:

Check Safety In Michigan Homes

LANSING (AP) — Some one million questionnaires aimed at checking home fallout protection in Michigan were in the mail today to families in 72 cities throughout the state.

The survey, conducted by the U.S. Bureau of the Census and the Michigan Civil Defense Division, was announced today by State Police Director Col. Frederick Davis, head of the division.

"I don't pretend to be an alarmist," Davis told a news conference, "but with the present state of turmoil, such protection could make the difference between survival and non-survival should we suddenly become involved in a nuclear holocaust."

The questionnaires will be mailed to each household in all one, two and three-family houses. They already have been sent to families in the larger cities in Michigan.

The Bureau of the Census will survey all other areas of Michigan, using locally employed enumerators to complete the questionnaires and to insure maximum coverage of the state, Davis said.

All who return the questionnaires will receive a booklet on which is printed a card telling them of the protection factor in the center of the basement, the location of the best-protected corner and the amount of protection in that area.

The survey is concerned with protection from nuclear fallout, Davis stressed, not bomb shelters.

Michigan is the 20th state to be surveyed.

Band To Sell Candy Monday

The 6th annual "Sweet Success" candy sale sponsored by the band department of the Escanaba Area public schools will begin Monday. John Chowen, high school band director, announced today. All band members take part in this annual sale of chocolate-covered nut clusters purchased from the Saykily Candy Co. of Escanaba.

All proceeds from the sale are used to provide scholarships to summer music camps, and for the operation of the Junior High band camp each summer at Clear Lake. This summer, 100 junior and senior high band members attended band camp on partial scholarships provided by the band department.

Tourist Assn. Elects Oct. 30

The Upper Michigan Tourist Association will hold its annual meeting at the Onigaming Supper Club in Houghton on Monday, Oct. 30, says Ken Dorman, secretary-manager.

The meeting will be an all-day event, beginning with registration at 9:30 a. m.

After a luncheon at the Onigaming, Jack English, of Wakefield, president of UMTA, will preside over the business meeting. Election of officers and directors, appointment of committee chairmen and presentations and discussions of how the regional concepts of UMTA can affect local tourism effort will be the order of business for the afternoon.

The evening will begin at the Onigaming with a social hour at 6 p. m., followed by dinner and a speaking program on tourism.

The theme of the meeting will be "Show Me" accenting how things done are so much more valuable than saying what could be accomplished. Dorman says the meeting is open to everyone interested in tourism, and particularly to those who are interested in the economic development of the Copper Country and the Upper Peninsula.

Weed Control

Farmers often ask how to control yellow rocket in alfalfa when they see it blooming in June. The answer is that nothing can be done then, but that they can do the job in October. Now is the time to kill weeds in alfalfa. Use M.C.P.A. at 1/2 pound active ingredients per acre. Use the same weed sprayer you have for other weed control programs. Never spray an alfalfa field the year it was seeded, if you do the chemical will kill the alfalfa along with the weeds.

For the first time in history, two former Upper Peninsula athletes will start at defensive tackle spots for the University of Wisconsin when the Badgers meet Iowa at Camp Randall Stadium in Madison Saturday. . . Tom Domres of Gladstone will hold down his usual right tackle spot and Coach John Coatt has named Jim Nowak, a 6-3, 217 pound junior, to man the left tackle position. . . Nowak was a teammate of Dick Berlinski, current Michigan State halfback, on Coach Rae Drake's Kingsford powerhouses a few years back. . . Domres is the leading tackler on the Badger team.

If you need any proof that the Upper Peninsula turns out a steady stream of college football prospects, here's a rundown on a few of the players who were named to the Upper Peninsula Sports Writers Association's All-U.P. team of 1964. . . Paul Santoni, Bill Bailey, Jim Lindstrom, Larry Brown, Dick McCarthy, Bill Sauter, Bob Bertrand, Jerry Luttrell, Chris Albrecht and Mark Martini went on to perform for Northern Michigan University. . . Steve Olson is at Illinois, Bill Barnowski at Central Michigan, and Jim Clairmont was at Army and Southern Illinois. . . Dick Berlinski plays with Michigan State and Don Holtz is also a member of the Spartan squad. . . Jerry Pettinen, Dane Dominici, John Rensville and Paul Domroska wound up at Michigan Tech and Barry Pierson at the University of Michigan.

Freshman halfback Jerry LaJennese of Michigan Tech leads the Northern Intercollegiate Conference in two departments, punting for a 37.7 average and catching 14 passes for 122 yards.

Dick Berlinski, of Kingsford, has punted 17 times for 648 yards and a 38.1 average for Michigan State in four games this season. . . The junior halfback has carried the ball five times for 23 yards and one touchdown. . . Last year's Spartan punter, Dick Kenney, averaged 34.6 yards per punt during the season. . . He received national publicity for his barefoot kicks.

Gary Ellison of Gladstone finished third in the Upper Peninsula Class A-B cross-country finals at Marquette, crossing the line behind Gordon Pekuri and Dave Hesse of Menominee. . . First finisher for Escanaba was Jerry Duchaine who placed eighth. . . Frank King led Holy Name's runners with a 20th place. . . In the U.P. Class C-D division, won by Eben Dale, Paul placed third and Clint Safford, fifth for Rapid River.

Tom Smith of Powers-Blanding has closed out a brilliant senior football season in which he led new coach Mike Powers-Blanding's Tigers to a perfect record and the Wolverine Conference throne room. . . Smith had a hand in 30 Powers touchdowns in six games, passing for 15 and running for 15. . . Scott Riedy was his favorite target, catching seven payoff pitches. . . Kim Riedy hauled in four.

Here are the seven game figures for Manistique's talented Bob Cowman, 6 foot, 185 pound senior quarterback: 60 completions in 130 passes for 1,074 yards and 15 touchdowns. . . Phil Nelson has caught six of his TD passes and Gary Sample has taken five.

The Quantic Marines, who play at Northern Saturday, boast some outstanding former college gridirers on their squad this season. . . The quarterback is Freddie Cobb of Virginia Tech while Tony Komarsky of North Carolina State is their leading runner. . . The defensive unit is led by end Aneur Haggerty of Oregon, linebackers Steve Radich of California and Clarence Harris of Grambling and back Steve Srahe of Navy. . . Northern has never beaten a Quantic team, although the Wildcats came close in a 7-6 tie last fall.

The Great Lakes Conference will hold its annual fall meeting at Munising Thursday, Nov. 2. . . Coaches will make their all-conference selections at the session which will be presided over by Don Pfotenbauer of Gladstone, this year's conference commissioner.

The Iron River Redskins blew a 21-6 halftime lead against Wakefield and bowed, 22-21 on a safety in the fourth quarter. . . Roger Norfolk threw two touchdowns passes in the second half and late in the game the Iron River center snapped the ball over the head of the punter and out of the end zone for the safety that gave Wakefield its slim margin of victory. . . Each team lost five fumbles in the rugged battle.

Kingsford is another team that staged an impressive rally last week as the Flippers wiped out a 20-6 halftime deficit to trip Stambaugh, 26-20 in Menominee Range Conference action. . . The winning touchdown came on an 80 yard pass play from Terry Duval to Tom Wender with four and a half minutes remaining in the game.

The Gwinn Model Towners came up with their best performance of the season in a 20-15 decision over Calumet. . . Sophomores Ron North and Terry Froberg accounted for two touchdowns as Coach George McCormick's gridirers gained their second win of the year.

Lions Have Good Chance To Snap Losing Streak Against Winless Falcons

DETROIT (AP)—The Detroit Lions have a good chance to end a three-game National Football League losing streak when the Atlanta Falcons invade Tiger Stadium Sunday. . . Coach Joe Schmidt put his team through a brisk two-hour workout Wednesday, concentrating on passing. The Falcons, a second-year expansion team which posted a 3-11 record last year and has yet to win a game this season, has an inexperienced pass defense. . . Schmidt said he did not plan any major changes for the Atlanta game and would stick with Milt Plum at quarterback. Plum has a minor shoulder strain but it did not hamper his passing in drills. . . "I don't think it's a crisis just because we've lost three in a row," Schmidt said. "We can't sit back and second guess ourselves."

Baseball Owners Agree To Shift; Plan Expansion

CHICAGO (AP)—The American League has voted to expand to 12 teams by 1969 and shift the Kansas City franchise to Oakland, Calif., for 1968. . . This came after an incensed Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., a member of the delegation, said he would call a news conference in Washington this afternoon, and after one Kansas City fan fumed that the league "has rewarded the man who sabotaged baseball in Kansas City and has left the city without baseball until 1971." . . But by early morning, Cronin was able to announce that after a meeting soon with the National League to discuss expansion, the American League would take all action within its power. . . To select a new ownership of the Kansas City club prior to March 1, 1968, in order that the Jackson County Sports Complex Authority would be able to obtain a commitment on a long-term lease on the proposed stadium in Kansas City and to enable the new club to field a team for the 1969 season. . . John Fetzler of Detroit probably summed it all up this way: "I am happy we were able to resolve a problem that looked almost impossible when we first walked into the meeting," he said. "The problem was the Kansas City issue."

Albeck Feels He Has Better Team But Faces Tougher Cage Schedule

MARQUETTE—"I think we will have a better team, but it probably won't show in the win-loss column because we'll be playing a stronger schedule." . . Those words from head basketball coach Stan Albeck summarize the basketball outlook at Northern Michigan University, where pre-season practice got underway this week. . . Albeck, whose career record is 162-69 in ten seasons at Northern, has six lettermen and two non-letter veterans returning from a team that was 14-10 a year ago. All of the lettermen held starting positions at some time during the season. To go with the experienced players, Albeck and assistant coach Glenn Brown are grooming a group of 10 first-year prospects.

Expected to provide the nucleus for the 1967-68 Wildcat squad are Dave Kovack, Ted Rose and Les Coduti. Kovack is a 6'3" junior from Westville, Ill., capable of playing either guard or forward. He averaged 15 points a game last season and led the team in scoring in nine games. . . Rose, a 6'6" Louisville, Ky., sophomore, alternated at center and forward in his season at NMU and led the squad in average rebounds per game with 11. He scored at a 13.9 clip. . . Coduti, a 5'11" senior from Ishpeming, won the first annual Thoroughbred Award as the Wildcat who exceeded ability the most times last season. He led NMU in scoring in five games and once walked off the court with rebounding honors from his guard position.

Three other lettermen joining Kovack, Rose and Coduti will be Mike Boyd, Don Jacobetti and Jeff Clement. Boyd, a 6'4" New Castle, Ind., junior, played both center and forward last season, averaged 9.7 in scoring and 8.8 in rebounding. Jacobetti, 6'0" Negaunee junior guard, broke into the starting lineup at mid-season and averaged 11.6 points per game. Clement, another 6'0" junior guard from Roseville, saw steady action as a front-line reserve.

Non-letter veterans returning are sophomores Terry King, Anderson, Ind., and Mike Gault, Marion, Ind. King, a 5'10" guard, saw action in six games, while Gault, a 6'6" forward, made two appearances. . . Joining this list of veterans will be what Albeck terms "an outstanding group of first-year prospects." The list includes Dana Come, 6'4" forward, Pierceton, Ind.; Jim Davis, 6'7" center, Danville, Ill.; Gerry Gerard, 6'5" forward, L'Anse; Ralph Hughes, 6'3" guard, Liberty, Ind.; Al Inkala, 6'5" forward, Wakefield; Larry Kipper, 5'8" guard, Bremen, Ind.; Paul Miller, 6'2" guard, Escanaba; Clark Smith, 5'11" guard; Petoskey; Steve Veecklaen, 6'5" guard, Grand Rapids, and Bill Zhukie, 5'11" guard, Ishpeming.

did not take part in heavy workouts.

"He looks better but I don't think he'll be ready," said Schmidt.

Tight end Ron Kramer, who suffered a painful knee bruise in the Chicago game, remains a doubtful starter but flanker Pat Studstill, confined to punting duties with a bad leg, is expected to be ready.

The Falcons, who tied Washington 20-20 last week after four straight losses, have a potent running offense led by fullback Junior Coffey, with 223 yards in 60 carries, and Tom Moore, the ex-Green Bay runner.

The team's passing game is not considered strong, with quarterbacks Randy Johnson and Terry Nofsinger well down in the NFL statistics, but halfback Ron Smith is among the league leaders in punt and kick-off returns. Smith has league high of 431 yards for returning kickoffs, including one for a 99-yard touchdown.

The Lions beat the Falcons 24-10 last year with Plum passing for two touchdowns. . . Defensive end Larry Hand, who has scored two touchdowns on pass interceptions, was signed this contract. He leaves only offensive guard Bob Kowalski and linebacker Ernie Clark unsigned.

Under NFL rules, the two players may play this year under option to Detroit, and become free agents next season.

News 'N Notes On NFL Action

SEVEN OF THE EIGHT GAMES played in the National Football League last Sunday ended with the opposing team totals within four points of each other. . . The only "big margin" was the Chicago Bears' 11-point victory over Detroit and even with that, the total separating all eight games was 26 points. . . It meant that 40 per cent, 16 of 40, of all NFL games played in the first five weeks of the season have been decided by seven points or less. . . Visiting teams have won 19 of the 40 games, home teams 18. There have been three ties.

"I DON'T THINK IT'S IMPORTANT who we beat," says Minnesota coach Bud Grant of the Vikings' 10-7 victory that ended Green Bay's unbeaten string at 17 games, including pre-season play. "The important thing is that we won and what it will mean to all of us. We haven't been that far away from winning," adds Grant, whose Vikings had lost their first four games. . . Minnesota's victory was its third in four years vs. the Packers at either Green Bay or Milwaukee, missing only in 1965 by 24-19 after what would have been a winning TD pass was nullified by a penalty. . . Earnest Mackbee, whose interception led to Fred Cox's game-winning field goal, said he was beaten two plays earlier by a Green Bay receiver but Zeke Bratkowski's pass was thrown elsewhere. . . "The man was open but they didn't see him and I was concerned that they would come back with the same play later," said Mackbee. "I was looking for it when it came."

SPLIT END HOMER JONES of the New York Giants carried 46 yards for a touchdown against Dallas on an end-around play that develops off a reverse. . . That was in the second game of the season. Two weeks later, against New Orleans, he ran the same play for 15 yards and a key first down. . . Then last Sunday, after the Pittsburgh Steelers had spent the week studying the Giants' films, Homer came running around again with less than two minutes to play, the Giants trailing 24-20 and the ball on the Giants' own 41. . . But this time when QB Fran Tarkenton handed to running back Ernie Koy and Koy handed to Jones, Homer didn't keep the ball. Instead, he flipped it back to Tarkenton who threw 59 yards to flanker Joe Morrison for the winning TD. . . The play had been suggested to Sherman twice earlier in the season. First, by Giant President Well Mara and was named the "Well Special" in his honor because it didn't have a number. Second, by a newsmen just last week. . . The writers — and the Steelers — didn't know the Giants had been practicing it for three weeks, and New York Coach Al Sherman replied, "If I have to win ball games that way, I'm no coach." . . After the 27-24 win over Pittsburgh, two straight now and a 3-2 record for a share of the Century Division lead, he's sure to get a few arguments.

RON JOHNSON, University of Michigan halfback, is shown in the grasp of Michigan State defensive back Bill Ware (32) after ripping off a short gain against the Spartans last Saturday. (AP Wirephoto)

Wolverine Halfback To Outgain Harmon?

ANN ARBOR (AP)—If the crack in Michigan's crumbling football fortunes becomes a hole, halfback Ron Johnson would probably run through it for a 10-yard gain.

The slim, but powerfully built junior from Detroit, who rips off huge chunks of yardage every time he carries a football, is quietly approaching the single season Wolverine rushing record established by the legendary Tom Harmon in 1939.

"I'm not worrying about the record books," says Johnson, who has carried most of the offensive load in what may turn out to be one of the mightiest Michigan's worst football seasons. "I'm just glad to be playing and hope we can win some games."

Johnson has carried 89 times in four games for 512 yards, an average gain of 5.8 yards per carry. He set a single game rushing record with 270 yards in 26 carries in a 26-21 loss to Navy Oct. 7.

Ironically, Harmon, who had two 200-plus games in 1939, didn't hold that record. Bill Daley, a fullback on the 1943 Michigan team, held the old mark of 216 yards.

But Johnson's pace is well ahead of the one set by Harmon in 1939 when he amassed 884 yards in 130 rushes over an eight-game schedule.

Johnson has six games to play and his current pace would put him in a position to eclipse Harmon's mark in Michigan's seventh game against Northwestern at Ann Arbor Nov. 4. "He's done a fine job for us," says Michigan Coach Bump Elliott. Ron has come into his own this year. His lines, as it is his ability to pick a hole, see it, recognize it and get through it."

Johnson, who ran for 107 yards in a 34-0 loss to arch-rival Michigan State Saturday, attributed his great start this season to a reduction in a body-building program he began as a sophomore.

"I'm a little looser than last year," said Johnson, who played 29 minutes as a sophomore behind Jim DeWeaver and picked up 44 yards in 12 carries. "I lifted too many weights my sophomore year thinking I had to be strong to play. But this summer I cut down on the weights and I feel looser."

"Playing all the time makes a difference, too," added Johnson. "I'm more confident now."

Johnson said California, which beat Michigan 10-9 Sept. 30, was the toughest defensive line he has faced all year.

"State didn't impress me that much," he said. "They weren't what they were built up to be." Johnson is a product of Detroit's Northwestern High School, which has produced a bevy of fine athletes, including Willie Horton of the Detroit Tigers and Johnson's brother, Alex, an outfielder with the world champion St. Louis Cardinals.

The way Michigan is going this year, Ron probably won't have much to talk about compared with his brother's tales about the Cardinals.

"But it would be kind of nice to mention at dinner some cold winter night that he had broken Tom Harmon's record."

Seven Braves To Play Final Game At Sault

GLADSTONE — Seven seniors will close out their Gladstone High School football careers when the Braves play their final game of the season at Sault Ste. Marie Friday night.

The Gladstone seniors are Dan Marenger, Dan Pepin, Pete Jarvis, Bill Johnson, Dan Gobert, Mike Maniaci and Jim Swenson. Pepin and Swenson were sidelined with injuries this season but both are available for action in the finale. Coach Don Pfotenbauer stated today.

The Braves will carry an impressive 5-2 record into the Great Lakes Conference clash. Gladstone is fresh from a 17-14 upset over previously undefeated Negaunee.

The Soo Blue Devils, who will be playing their Homecoming game, lost their first three starts this year but have won their last four outings against Newberry, Ishpeming, Marquette and Munising.

In addition to the seven seniors, Pfotenbauer has 18 juniors and five sophomores on his squad.

Huron Is Next For Coho: Tody

BAY CITY (AP) — A Great Lakes system free of fish-eating lampreys and loaded with massive game fish of many kinds by the early 1970s was predicted Wednesday by Dr. Wayne Tody, chief of the State Conservation Department's fish division.

Lake Huron is the next big target, Tody told the 57th annual convention of the Eastern Michigan Tourist Association.

In fact, said Tody, the first moves were made this week with the planting of 170 adult Coho salmon in each of two rivers feeding into Huron.

Next spring, he said, the first large planting of some 200,000 smolts or small Coho will take place in a not-yet-determined river. Although the operation is seen as a bit risky because Lake Huron is not yet rid of lampreys, Tody held out hope the experiment might be successful.

By 1969, Huron should be completely cleared of lampreys, and fullscale planting of Coho and other game fish could get underway.

In addition to Coho, Tody said, various kinds of trout probably will be planted in Huron. One of them will be a replacement for the lake trout, destroyed by the lamprey after the opening of the St. Lawrence Seaway. The replacement fish, Tody told the tourist association, will be the Splake trout, a cross between lake and brook trout.

Tody also foresaw a large supply of perch, walleyes, northern pike and other predator fish feeding on an oversupply of alewives as the lampreys are wiped out.

39th Homecoming

The parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Jules E. Rivard of 304 Chippewa Ave. and Mrs. Marie L. Dufour of Deer St.

The lace bodice of acetate and nylon had a scalloped neckline with long pointed sleeves; gently belled skirt with a self bow at the back waist. The gown was accented with a detachable long train lined in nylon net with sequins and simulated pearl trim on the bodice and train. She wore a fingertip veil of pure silk with hand rolled edges attached to a crown of simulated pearls and orange-white blossoms. She carried a bouquet of red roses and trailing ivy and wore a white cameo rose given to her by the bridegroom.

Julie Ann Rivard, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and Ginger Marie Boniekoe also a sister of bride was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Rita Charter and Barbara LaMuth, friends of the bride. Junior bridesmaids were Mary Beth Stokier and Debra Ranguette both cousins of the bride. They wore identical floor length dresses. The bodice consisted of royal velvet blue with three quarter length bell sleeves. The skirts were of light blue crepe lined with polyester. Royal blue velvet bows formed the head pieces. They carried one red rose. A rhinestone necklace was given to each of the bridesmaids by the bride. Diane Weber, niece of the bridegroom was flower girl. She carried a basket of red roses and wore a floor length dress identical to the bridesmaids.

Jeffery DuFour, nephew of the bridegroom was ring bearer. He carried a satin pillow with the rings. The altarboys, both cousins of the bride, were Ronald Tatrow and Danny Murphy. Serving as best man was Jerry DuFour, brother of the bridegroom. The groomsmen were James Miller, Ralph Miller, friends of the bridegroom and Tony DuFour, nephew of the bridegroom. Dick DuFour, a nephew was usher. A chain tie tuck and handkerchief with Initial was a gift given to the groomsmen by the bridegroom.

Reception

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Rivard chose a royal blue sheath dress with matching accessories and wore a corsage of pink carnations. Mrs. DuFour wore a three-piece gold suit with matching accessories and a corsage of white carnations. Grandmother of the bride, Mrs. Joseph Duchene wore a navy blue dress with matching accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

A reception was held at the KC Hall for 300 guests from 6 to 9 p. m. Following the reception was a dance with music by the Kenders Band. Gifts were opened by Julie Rivard, Mary Beth Stokier and Rita Charter.

Students Vote Class Boycott If Prof's Fired

Two thousands of Northern Michigan University's student body of 7,000 voted last night to boycott classes starting Friday, Oct. 27 if the university administration does not reinstate Dr. Robert McClellan, a history professor who has been notified that his contract will not be renewed next June.

The timing of the student ultimatum coincides with the planned conclusion of a review of the McClellan dismissal case by the University Board of Control. It was erroneously reported yesterday that the board review would be this week Wednesday and Thursday. It will be next week Wednesday and Thursday.

Meanwhile students are picketing the office of interim President Ogden Johnson to force action in the case and the faculty senate is awaiting a reply from Gov. George Romney on its request for a state high level inquiry into the McClellan case by distinguished educators.

In presentations to both the student body and the faculty, President Johnson explained that the decision not to renew McClellan's contract had not been hasty and that it had been reviewed and approved by the board of control. The action was taken in the administration of Dr. Edgar L. Harden, who resigned from the NMU presidency earlier this year.

Johnson said that the reasons for McClellan's dismissal had not been publicly announced earlier out of respect for his privacy. He will not be invited back, Johnson said, because it was decided that his attitude toward the university is negative. He opposed curriculum changes, encouraged student protests over conditions in dormitory housing in buildings being newly opened, and led homeowner protests against the university when it proposed to clear an area of dwellings for campus expansion in implementation of the Dioxidia Report and other planning.

The faculty senate had charged in its statement to the governor that the university administration had not followed accepted procedure in its decision not to retain Dr. McClellan. He is a lay preacher in the Episcopal Church.

outlined Republican positions on Vietnam over the years, should be balanced by a White House recital of recent administration statements on the war.

Daniel, surprised when a newsman showed him a copy of Watson's message to him, said if he had received such a communication addressed to someone else, he would have passed it along to the addressee "and not reproduced it and made it public."

The Democrats' resolution on Vietnam, introduced by Govs. John Connally of Texas and Calvin L. Rampton of Utah, expressed support of "the military defense of Vietnam against aggression and our continuing search for a meaningful solution assuring peace and stability for that area."

Democratic Gov. Richard J. Hughes of New Jersey said if the governors do not approve it, the morale of U.S. troops will be hurt and that of the Communists bolstered. He said that is not the Republicans' intent, "but it will be the inevitable result."

Republican Gov. Daniel J. Evans of Washington said the GOP governors felt the conference should deal with state matters, not foreign policy, and since the Democrats are pressing the point, any morale problems will be their fault.

Flat Rock To Reduce Millage

Flat Rock (Escanaba Township) School District will not levy the full 4.3 mills for operation authorized by the district. Supt. Leo Brunelle announced today, but only 3.3 mills. This levy, with the 6.7 mills allocated from the 15-mill property tax, will make a total school levy for operation of 10 mills. The district also has a 9 mill levy for debt service on its school building.

Brunelle said that the district voted an extra mill in July making a total of 4.3 when it appeared that 11 mills would be required by the state for full participation in state school aid. This did not happen, said Brunelle, the old level of 10 mills qualifies for full state aid, so the district is not levying the extra mill.

Brunelle said that the district has been allocated $3,444 under Title V of the Elementary & Secondary Act for a third year program in reading and math improvement.
